

Competition

Competition in our industry is intense and most of our competitors have greater financial resources than do we. Competition will come from a wide variety of consulting and accounting firms, many of which have more resources, significantly greater number of employees and greater name recognition than do we. We intend to compete based on the reputation and contacts of our founder and the creative and practical approach to services that we offer. Our president has more than 20 years of experience in providing a variety of consulting services to corporations.

No assurances can be given that our competitive strategy will be successful.

Employees

At June 30, 2006, we had one employee, Cosimo J. Patti, who, since June 2004, devotes fulltime to us, but has been and will continue to be involved with other ventures. Most aspects of engagements are subcontracted to independent consultants. There are no written contracts.

The independent consultants with whom we work have no ongoing contracts or agreements with us. One such consultant is a director of our company. It is likely that key consultants in the future will be asked to become directors.

There can be no assurance that a liquid market for our securities will ever develop.
